MATH/BIOCHEM 609
Mathematical Methods for Systems Biology

Intended to provide a rigorous foundation for mathematical modeling of biological systems. Mathematical techniques include dynamical systems and differential equations. Applications to biological pathways, including understanding of bistability within chemical reaction systems, are emphasized.

For more information go to http://www.math.wisc.edu.